Effects of the Severe Winter.

The winter, which is now passing away, has been one of the severest ever experienced since the settlement of the Territory by white inhabitants. The heaped-up drifts along the road, where it traverses the Wasatch range, the heavy and wide-spread burthen of snows, which fill the gorges and load the mountain-sides, attest the fury of the storms that have held high carnival in these bleak altitudes, sweeping them with the icy breath of the frozen zone.

At Fort Bridger, where little preparation was made for the accommodation of the number of troops, who have been forced to hibernate there, the snow-blockade between them and their source of supplies, at one time, threatened serious inconvenience and even suffering, but by dint of the most incessant and untiring efforts the danger was averted. The trouble occurred by the command, ordered beyond the Rocky Mountains last Fall, being overtaken at that post by the early advent of winter and compelled to remain, from the impossibility of proceeding further.

A large number of Government animals have perished there for want of forage, as well as many more belonging to private citizens, and those that did not die were unable to haul fuel sufficient to supply the post, and it was found necessary for the troops to draw it from the woods on hand-sleighs, which has been done for a considerable time past. The animals not absolutely required for pressing need, were turned out on Henry's Fork of Green river to find their own pasturage and fared much the best, having kept in excellent condition, notwithstanding the inclement season.

The destruction of stock throughout the Territory, at least the colder portions, must have been very great, as seen here and Fort Bridger. On the Weber one or more may be seen in nearly every farm-yard, and the fences are not infrequently covered with a number of hides flayed from the carcasses of starved herds, while the dilapidated condition of those that survive is sufficient evidence of deficient forage. The lack of hay, or any substitute in lieu thereof, is visible everywhere, and it is an exception to the rule to find any farm with enough to feed its stock until they can find pasturage on the hills. We observed many browsing their cattle upon willows. But the snow is now rapidly disappearing from the valleys and sunward slopes, and the farmers may venture to hope that the worst is past. Certainly during our residence in Utah we have never experienced a winter of such severity as the past, nor one that left so many visible evidences of its rigor.

However, misfortunes to the few may bring its reward to the many, as the ample snows of the mountains will refresh the deserts with water during the sultry days of summer and clothe the valleys with plenty.

TERRY.—General Terry chanced upon his great fame by an accident. It is said he was at Gen. Grant's headquarters the day after the news of Butler's withdrawal had been received, and in conversation with Grant, said: "I think Gen. Butler could have taken the fort." "Do you," said General Grant, "then go and take it yourself." And he was put forthwith in command of the expedition.

The softer the head the harder the work of driving anything into it.

AN ADDRESS TO THE PEOPLE

BY A RESIDENT OF UTAH.

ARTICLE 8.

The arrogant presumption, bitter maledictions, boasted superiority, corrupt and degrading epithets with which the disloyal utterances in the discourse quoted from abounds, and with which the major part of the barangues delivered from the stand in the Tabernacle, Bowerly and meeting houses, by leading Mormons, are so horribly replete, are but ill adapted to convince "Gentiles" of the loyalty of their authors to any government other than that of which the enemy of everything good, is the acknowledged and supreme head; far less of their loyalty to that government that has its seat in the heart and affections of the great American people.

The year in which these demoniacal ravings were uttered was the one preceding that which gave birth to the revolting absolutism that demanded the flesh and blood of its subject as an offering at the shrine of its sanguinary deity. An absolutism more absolute in its control of the very thoughts of its subjects than that of the most despotic of all despots; and that, too, established on American soil, by natural born Americans, hypocritically pretending to the most profound veneration for our free republican institutions. No wonder that under so corrupt a state of things, which the government at Washington was made cognizant of, the propriety of supplanting these despots with loyal, and patriotic men was freely discussed in political circles, and the general conclusion arrived at that it were incompatible with the spirit and genius of the Constitution to permit the existence of a worse than heathen despotism on the fair domain of the United States.

Already were the people of Utah taught that the United States would be broken without remedy—that the administrators of the law had become irredeemably corrupt—that the government at Washington were derelict in their duties in not having before then admitted Utah, on an equal footing with other States, into the National family; that, failing to do this, they violated the Constitution in giving their "advice and consent" to the appointment of Territorial officers by the Executive, instead of granting the people of the Territory the State prerogative of electing their own officers; and that "so far as the free, untrammelled consent and expressed wishes of the governed are concerned should choose to waive their Constitutional rights and prefer a state of vassalage, a state of being ruled by officers thrust upon them and legislated for by usurped authority, we see no reason why their choice should not be complied with, at least upon the principle of the voluntary consent of the governed. But when said majority, even to the extent of an entire community, are known to most persistently prefer officers of their own election to those foisted upon them by arbitrary power, and purely republican [Oh, dear!] laws of their own enactment to laws carved, dictated and forced upon them by a power to which the Constitution gives no such authority, we are constrained to say that most truly are men prone to oppress their fellows." Vide Deseret News, vol. 6, page 372.

After this elaborate argumentation in favor of the propositions set forth in the paragraph just quoted, the author, who is no less a personage than the present editor of the Deseret News, breaks forth in query, and boldly prognosticates the general uprising that characterized the Mormon rebellion of the year subsequent, in the following language:

"How long, think ye, can such oppression be quietly endured? How long, think ye, will any people submit to the dictates, slanders, corruptions and abuse, of officers whom they have no voice in electing, and whose efforts are constantly put forth, to their utmost, for the destruction of the people among whom they are sent? Suppose ye that the few dollars parsimoniously doled out by Congress, can buy freemen to overlook such glaring inconsistencies?"

Such was the tone of argument by which church leaders aroused and excited the irascible propensities of a fanatical people against "the best government the world ever saw," and such the tenor of the teachings that culminated in the fugitious advocacy of open rebellion against that government.

GRIEF murmurs; anger roars; impatience frets; but happiness, like a calm river, flows on in quiet sunlight, without a ripple or fall to mark the rushing of time towards eternity.

IMPROVEMENT AT CAMP UNION—

We have had occasion heretofore to refer to the matter of short rations, etc., at Camp Union, and the dissatisfaction existing among the soldiers on that account. We are glad to note the decided change in that regard for the better within the last few days. On Friday morning last, when General McDowell visited the Camp for inspection and review, the members of each company were notified that they were at liberty to step forward and state in person to the General any complaint which they might have to make. In response to this notice large numbers of the men came forward. In Company D—recently under command of Captain Crenomy—now in charge of Lieutenant Loring, every member, without exception, came forward. From each of the other companies large numbers responded; from some, about one-third; from others, one-half, and yet others, two-thirds of the aggregate number. The most of these men were questioned one by one by General McDowell, and with great unanimity they complained of both the quantity and quality of bread, and quantity and quality of meat with which they had been furnished, denying that they had received their full rations, or that that which they had received was furnished in good condition. Gen. McDowell heard their complaints with respect and courtesy, and has evidently given heed to what he learned. Since the inspection the soldiers at camp have been supplied with full rations. It is to be hoped that the change will not be temporary but permanent. One soldier told the General that he had never had occasion to complain of a want of provisions in any other service than the present. In reply to several questions he stated further that he was an American by birth, but that he had served in Italy under Garibaldi, in Brazil, and in the Union army in the East at the commencement of the present war. Ec.

THE HUMILIATION OF SOUTH CAROLINA.—The capture of Columbia, the capital of South Carolina, and the evacuation of Charleston, occurred on the anniversary of the inauguration of Jeff. Davis as President of the rebel Confederacy, the 17th of February. It is not quite four years since the rebel Convention of that State declared its union with "the States of North America" dissolved, and that "the State of South Carolina has resumed her position among the nations of the world." And when Fort Sumter surrendered, Gov. Pickens said in a speech to the Charlestonians:

"We have humbled the flag of the United States, and as long as I have the honor to preside as your chief magistrate so help me God there is no power on this earth that shall lower from that fortress those flags, unless they be lowered and trailed in a sea of blood."

Gov. Pickens never intended that his veins should help to swell that "sea of blood." Before Charleston fell, he, coward like, ran away in the night, and saved every drop of his precious blood. —Denver News.

Soft soap in some shape, pleases all; and generally speaking, the more lye you put into it the better.

A QUEER CASE.—The substance of the subjoined item came to our ears some weeks since, and has been noticed in a few of our exchanges, but being unable to obtain satisfaction as to the reality of the case, we declined publishing anything in relation to it. Having recently, however, received a history of the case, we give it place. It appears that with one of the companies organized in this place (for nine-months' service), in the summer of 1862, went a man who left a wife and small family. On the bloody field of Antietam he fell, was buried, and his wife afterwards had his body disinterred, brought home, and re-interred in the soldiers' lot in the cemetery. A year afterwards she married again, and in due time a child was born, the fruit of the second marriage. When the call for 500,000 was being filled up, last fall, the second husband enlisted, and is now in the army. A short time since the first husband returned, alive and well, having been taken prisoner at Antietam instead of being killed. He had been held by rebels until the late exchange at Savannah. Of course the parties are in a queer fix; but all will agree that the soldier who was once killed, twice buried, starved two years in rebel prisons, and yet came home alive, is certainly entitled to his wife. "Truth is stranger than fiction." The query is, "Who was buried in the cemetery?" —Altoona (Blair County) Tribune.

RAVAGES OF THE SEASON.—Spring, which in other lands brings balmy airs, gurgling brooks, and budding leaves and blossoms, has sterner moods for us dwellers in the rugged hills and sagebrush flats of Nevada. Just now, each morning looks as though during the night gone by "an earthquake passed," to awaken the denizens from their somnolence. Immense fissures in the streets yawn hideously. At the junction of the Austin and Clifton grades the chasm made by the floods is at least ten feet deep, and a house upon the side hangs half over the gulf. So many buildings have melted like frost in the sunshine that the event ceases to be worthy of record. A portion of the Pioneer brewery—a stone building—has fallen in, crushing the machinery. The building heretofore occupied by J. Riley as a store, the property of Mr. Egan, caved last night. The rear of A. P. Herford's office resembles the walls of Fort Sumpter. A portion of the building lately occupied by the Reveille fell last night. We heard it surmised this morning that the last named disaster was attributed to the amount of heavy business recently transacted therein by the Grand Jury. Other buildings too numerous to mention have tumbled, and many more resemble the leaning tower of Pisa. The time has gone by in which people of Austin would invest in adobe buildings. —Austin Reveille.

A learned doctor once gave it as his opinion that tight lacing is a great public advantage, because it kills off the fooling girls and leaves the wise only to grow into women.

A blockhead having unexpectedly come into property, sent for a tailor to measure him for a coat of arms.

EXCESSIVELY MODEST.—A young lady recently stepped into a fancy dry goods store and called for a pair of stockings, addressing herself to a nice little specimen of imperial spot and moustached lip, that stood behind the counter.

"Have't any article of that name, Miss, but we have beautiful hose of silk and Lama's hair. Which do you prefer?—and what color do you admire?"

"Young gentleman," she replied, "I called for a pair of stockings; I mean what I say, and if this shocks your modesty, you will excuse me. I know a tow-headed fellow over the way, who will sell me a pair of stockings"—and with this remark she left the young embodiment of starch, hair and ramrods to recover at his leisure from the shock given to his modesty by this vulgar young lady.

MAKING THE BEST OF IT.—A humorous writer in the Chicago Post describes how he got out of a bad scrape in the Police Court. "The next morning the Judge of the Police Court sent for me. I went down and he received me cordially. Said he had heard of the wonderful things I had accomplished, by knocking down five persons and assaulting six others, and was proud of me. I was a promising young man, and all that. Then he offered a toast, 'Guilty or not Guilty?' I responded in a brief but eloquent speech, setting forth the importance of the occasion that brought us together. After the usual ceremonies I was requested to lend the city five dollars."

A RIVAL TO CENTRAL PARK.—The Philadelphians are going to have a new City Park, as an offset to the Central Park in New York, if there is not too much opposition in the councils.

A country dentist advertises that he "spares no pains" to render his operations satisfactory.

Local Matters.

VETERANS FROM THE GALLANT THIRD—Wm. McClatchy, Mellyron and Carey, who were formerly of Co. "A," 3d Inf., C. V., and recently discharged, have enlisted in Hancock's Veteran Corps at the East, and gone to the war. The "true blue" of the glorious old Third, shows itself conspicuously and fully demonstrates that three years of service has not for a moment diminished the patriotism for which this regiment has ever been noted. McClatchy was for a long time, a compositor in this office, and left Camp Douglas in December last.

The unrivalled contortionist and tumbler, Master Tommy, had a benefit at the Camp Theater on Thursday evening. He was assisted by a full caste of the Camp Douglas Gymnastic Club, and by several gentlemen of the minstrel profession and vocalists.

Tommy always does what he undertakes to do, and turns himself "inside out" with more grace and less exertion than many of the celebrities in his profession.

We had occasion, some time since, to make mention of the nuisance created in camp by persons allowing swine to run about promiscuously. The abominable filth, besides the mischief they create, in destroying clothing, etc., is unbearable, and we would advise those persons either to house these animals, or else kill them, before some one does it for them. The nuisance will not be tolerated much longer.

The Camp Douglas Quadrille Band will give a pleasant social party this evening at the Camp Hall.

S. E. Allen will furnish refreshments to all who choose to patronize him. We hear he is preparing a fine collation, in the way of coffee, sandwiches, pies, etc. As there is to be no general supper given, this will be a good proviso.

We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Messrs. Oliver Ditson & Co., Boston Mass. They have a large assortment of Piano Music, etc. Orders from the West will be promptly attended to by them.

We can boast of delightful, warm and pleasant weather, for three days, with every indication of settled weather for some time to come.

LIQUORS

AT

Prior to the sailing of Burnside's expedition, a Yankee trader, who wished to make a safe "venture," called upon the President, to whom he stated that he wished to send some goods down South, and that to be safe, he would like to know the destination of Burnside's expedition. Says Uncle Abe, "I will tell you in confidence, but you must not whisper it to a soul."

"Not a word, sir, you can trust me."

"Well, then," said the President, placing his mouth close to the trader's ear, "Burnside's fleet is going to sea."

The Yankee couldn't exactly see that he had gained much information.

COAL OIL.—The reports of petroleum discovered in such great quantities in California have caused a great falling off in shipments of that needed illumination from Eastern cities, and as a consequence, speculators are making the attempt to corral the stock in the market of San Francisco, with a view to a rise in price.

"Don't you understand me, Jim?" exclaimed the old man. "Why, you must be quite a fool." "True, I am very near one," meekly replied Jim.

Why is anything not easily denominated, like a chronometer? Because it's a "watch you may call it."

Who dares complain of this delightful weather? We say, "let it come."
